DEPARTMENT OF HEALTH PROVIDES COVID-19 VACCINE UPDATE

By Jeff Cox and Matt Hess, Pennsylvania Legislative Services | February 17, 2021

Acting Secretary of Health Alison Beam and Senior Advisor for COVID-19 Response Lindsey Mauldin met with reporters to provide an update on the distribution of the COVID-19 vaccine in Pennsylvania.

Sec. Beam told reporters, “As the Department of Health (DOH) works to improve the complex processes necessary to get the COVID-19 vaccine from the manufacturers into the arms of Pennsylvanians as quickly as possible, we discovered some providers inadvertently used the Moderna vaccine shipped to them intended as second doses as first doses.” She explained, “It seems the perfect storm of circumstances: an eagerness to get vaccines to residents, incredible pent-up desire by the public to get this vaccine, dedicated vaccine providers trying to deliver what their customers are demanding, inconsistent vaccine allocations, confusion about Operation Warp Speed vaccine deliveries, and the need for more frequent and clearer communications from the department all converged to bring us to the point in which we are in today.”

Sec. Beam said, “In the short term we are faced with second dose Moderna vaccine requests far exceeding the Moderna vaccine allocated to the state this week.” She stressed, “Allow me to be abundantly clear: the Pfizer vaccine is not affected.” Sec. Beam stated, “After careful review and discussion with legislators on Gov. Tom Wolf’s COVID-19 Vaccine Joint Task Force, we have a clear path forward. Again, we are committed to ensuring that second doses are available.” According to Sec. Beam, the department explored excess inventory not scheduled for administration this week and, to the extent they were able to, used it to help address this issue. She reported that one of the remedies includes adjusting the timing of Moderna second dose administration. Sec. Beam explained that all providers will be following Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) guidelines that set the minimum time between doses at 28 days and the maximum time at 42 days. According to Sec. Beam, “By extending the time between doses while remaining within CDC guidelines, we can minimize any disruption to first dose vaccinations.” She asserted, “Our goal remains getting the extremely limited supply of vaccine to people as quickly and as efficiently as possible.”

Sec. Beam told reporters, “The department is working directly with vaccine providers throughout this process and, in line with the vaccine order that the governor and I signed last week, we will soon be able to provide more precise information on vaccine allocations each week to increase transparency and predictability with first doses.” She stated, “This situation is a stark reminder that right now there is not enough vaccine for everyone who is eligible to get it. We know there will be more vaccine in the future and we are working to get as much vaccine as we can into the arms of Pennsylvanians.” Sec. Beam concluded, “We will find ways to enhance that process. In the meantime, we must mask up, wash up and social distance to save lives.”

Mauldin reported that through February 16, 1,749,949 doses have been administered by local vaccine providers. She said that 82 percent of first doses have been administered and 38 percent of second doses have been administered. Mauldin explained, “That means over 1.5 million Pennsylvanians have received their first dose and nearly half a million people have received both doses and are now fully vaccinated.” According to Mauldin, “This week Pennsylvania has been allocated 183,575 first doses of vaccine and 143,275 second doses of vaccine.” She pointed out that the federal government is also sending thousands of vaccine doses directly to Rite Aid and Topco stores in Pennsylvania under the Federal Retail

Pharmacy Program and the Philadelphia Department of Public Health receives its own, separate allocation of vaccine. Mauldin said in total 326,850 doses are coming to Pennsylvania vaccine providers this week, which is an increase of almost 8,000 doses from last week.

Mauldin commented, "We know that getting vaccinated is such an important step in the effort to stop COVID-19 and we know people may be struggling to get a vaccine appointment." She continued, "Right now there is simply not enough vaccine available to meet the incredible demand and Pennsylvania is not unique in this regard." Mauldin said, "There will be more vaccine available in the future and Pennsylvania has a large network of trusted local vaccine providers ready to deliver it when that day comes." She noted, "Meanwhile, last week we launched the Your Turn tool to help everyone understand where they fall in the vaccination prioritization effort."

Mauldin also commented, "While most of the focus across the country has been on the vaccination effort, it is important to remember that testing for COVID-19 is still widely available in Pennsylvania. In fact, our COVID-19 testing provider continues to offer regional testing in five counties each week." She reported over 11 million test results have been received in Pennsylvania to date. Mauldin concluded, "The virus remains a very real threat and one we must take seriously by following existing mitigation orders and continuing to test. Ultimately, all protective mitigation measures, testing and vaccinations work in conjunction to provide a safe and healthy Pennsylvania."

Sec. Beam responded to questions from the news media.

How many doses were impacted, who are the providers, and who will decide who will not receive a first dose?

Sec. Beam said the department has communicated with the legislative task force and with providers to reinforce that every action will be taken to provide secure second doses. "Providers will have the ability to communicate with us as they learn through today and tomorrow what the allocations will be and the impact to them. If there is one message to provide to individuals it is that this is all in an effort for second dose security," she stated.

But you didn't answer my question; who are the providers?

Sec. Beam explained that the amount of doses requested was 200,000 second doses of Moderna. "That's roughly our entire Moderna allocation for the week so we had to be able to adjust. We were able to partner with our federal pharmacy partners and retail partners to identify any inventory we could use in the immediate to address this. We also communicated to our partners that they could avail themselves to CDC's permission to go to the 42nd day, which is the rescheduling of a second dose appointment to the fifth or sixth week...All of that was done to minimize any disruption to those first doses, which will have a reduction for the following week. Providers will be finding out their allocations throughout the day today and we are also holding frequent provider communications for them to engage with us directly with any questions they may have," she stated.

Were all 200,000 second doses given out as first doses?

Sec. Beam said the matter is a structural issue that began in the beginning of January. "There was inadvertent use of Moderna second doses and it was an issue that compounded week over week. This is the week that we addressed it because it has become so significant. The amount of requested second doses of Moderna was almost equal to our entire allocation of Moderna. Over the next two to three weeks we will have corrected for it. By increasing our provider communications we will hopefully be better aligned with our provider community and prevent it from happening moving forward," she stated.

Has the narrowing down of providers begun?

Sec. Beam said the department is attempting to concentrate the vaccine to providers that are able to handle volume and speed. "Our first doses will progressively be going to a smaller provider network. Second doses will remain secure and providers will receive the second doses that they have administered the corresponding first dose for," she stated.

Does this impact individuals who had a second Moderna shot scheduled?

Sec. Beam indicated those individuals will be rescheduled for the following week or the week after they were scheduled to receive their second shot. "Patients will be able to secure their second shot within the 42-day window," she stated.

Will primary care physicians still be able to administer the vaccine?

Sec. Beam said the ability for primary care physicians to administer first doses will taper off but affirmed that second doses will still go to the provider that administered the first dose.

Why have places like Lancaster General Hospital not received vaccine shipments for two weeks?

Sec. Beam said the department's press team would follow up.

Other hospitals have said weather issues have impacted their ability to receive vaccine shipments, is that accurate?

Sec. Beam said weather has been an issue, noting the past few weeks have been concerning as well as upcoming weather forecasts. Regarding specific causations for hospitals, she stated she would have the press team follow up.

Is the issue with the second shots due to a lack of a centralized system for vaccinations?

Sec. Beam said the issue is not related to a lack of a centralized system. "Ultimately it is a scarcity of commodity. We do not have enough vaccine to go around. We still need more vaccine. At this stage a centralized registry has not been identified as something that would help remedy the circumstance that we're dealing with right now," she stated.

What provider made this mistake?

Sec. Beam stated, "We are not here to have blame placed anywhere. All of us are focusing on the path forward and moving Pennsylvania forward as well."

How many people will be impacted?

Sec. Beam said 30,000 to 60,000 second dose appointments may need to be rescheduled and there could be 30,000 to 55,000 first doses that providers had anticipated that will not be delivered this week.

So it could be over 100,000 people impacted by this. Who will be communicating with them?

Sec. Beam said DOH is working with providers to make sure that people are rescheduled for their second dose appointment at their first dose provider. "The controls we put in place are not only in reference to clearer communication but also allow us to all synch on the same calendar, making sure that we are all ordering in alignment with Operation Warp Speed policies, the state's policies, and each of the provider policies. We are really right-tracking this and it will take this week, next week, and the following week to be able to put us on more stable ground," she stated.

Isn't it incumbent on the department to tell people what providers they have to get in touch with?

Sec. Beam reiterated that it was a structural issue that was compounded since early January. "This is an unprecedented rollout. This issue is of such magnitude that there is always an opportunity to do better," she stated.

Do individuals have to start the vaccination process over again and receive another first dose?

Sec. Beam said individuals should secure their second dose. "There is no difference in the medicine in the first and second doses. They started their regimen with their first dose; they should fulfill the vaccine by having that second dose administered by the same provider they had for the first dose," she stated.

WOLF ADMINISTRATION PROVIDES UPDATE ON RESPONSE TO SNOWSTORM AND COVID-19 VACCINE

By Maggie Doldt, Pennsylvania Legislative Services | February 18, 2021

State agency representatives held a press briefing today on the recent snowstorm and the status of COVID-19 vaccines.

Randy Padfield, executive director, Pennsylvania Emergency Management Agency (PEMA), noted that this storm may not "be severe as it could be," but they still take on every storm with a clear planning process, knowing weather changes always have the potential to affect the commonwealth. He acknowledged the southern states that are experiencing storms currently show "how quickly conditions can change, lives can be significantly impacted, and daily routines significantly disrupted." He emphasized that weather changes across the country also affect the operations of the state, including shipments of vaccines from areas that are seeing these weather conditions. He stated, "It takes awareness of these interdependencies, anticipation of impacts, and dedicated planning to compensate for situations that occur outside the commonwealth and ultimately affect functions within the state."

Padfield noted that leading up to this storm the state monitored the forecast and had conference calls with multiple state agencies to plan. He remarked that they added staff to the Commonwealth Response Coordination Center and are working with the Pennsylvania Department of Transportation (PennDOT), the Pennsylvania State Police, and the Turnpike Commission to "monitor conditions and adjust plans accordingly." He stated they have seen no "significant impacts" since the storm began but they are prepared to respond if needed. He emphasized the importance of being prepared at local and individual levels, noting that when individuals are prepared, "we are as a whole more resilient and better able to handle impacts such as loss of power, loss of heat, difficult traffic conditions, and disruptions in the supply chain for necessities such as food and water."

Jeff Jumper, state meteorologist, PEMA, noted they have been watching the storm since early in the morning and have watched it move to southern and eastern parts of the state. He remarked that it has been a "moderate to heavy snowfall" and areas east of the Interstate 83 corridor and south of Interstate 81 to 78 corridors have seen most of the snow. He added the heaviest precipitation occurred this morning and it is "starting to wrap up now." He noted that there may be some areas with light to moderate snow tonight but it should be out of the state by tomorrow morning. He explained they are expecting only a couple more inches tonight with a lull in the precipitation currently. He stated there has been about one foot of snow in the southeast but reiterated “it is all wrapping up at this point” and there have been some winter storm advisories that are being updated to “match what is going on here.” He remarked that temperatures will stay below freezing into the night and the beginning of tomorrow but will begin to rise tomorrow afternoon. He added that the weekend should be quiet and will stay quiet into early next week.

Melissa Batula, deputy secretary for highway administration, PennDOT, stated they have been in constant contact with other agencies and states. She noted that due to current weather conditions, driver’s license centers in many counties are closed today, including the Riverfront Office in Harrisburg. She remarked people can check dmv.pa.gov for more information on the status of these centers. She noted that across the state they have seen some “isolated incidents that often occur during these types of storms” and they have put speed and vehicle restrictions on “roadways in the most highly impacted areas of the state.” She stated that they might put additional restrictions on roads if necessary and people can check 511pa.com for updates on restrictions. She remarked that they have mobilized teams in southwest Pennsylvania to help with the hardest hit areas. She emphasized staying home and avoiding travel if possible, but indicated higher traffic routes are being prioritized for those who need to travel can “as safely as possible.” She noted that it will take time to have all lanes clear, and even if a road seems clear drivers should be aware of slow-moving plows on the roads.

Lindsey Mauldin, senior adviser for COVID-19 response, Department of Health (DOH), acknowledged that these weather conditions impacted shipments of both the Pfizer and Moderna vaccine from manufacturing facilities. She clarified that the Moderna vaccine was not shipped Monday, Tuesday, or Wednesday; Pfizer was not shipped on Monday; and “limited doses” were shipped on Tuesday and Wednesday. She stated that the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) is currently working with shipping partners “to resume shipments as quickly and safely as possible, however there will be a significant backlog of orders for distribution as a result of the adverse weather.” She noted that the current weather in Pennsylvania may delay shipments that were sent out this week from reaching vaccine providers, but the department is working with PEMA to “monitor the inventory of vaccines in Pennsylvania.” She acknowledged that these delays will affect the state’s ability to “get vaccines into arms” and anyone who has a vaccine appointment should contact their provider before traveling.

To what extent will this affect the ability to fix the issues described and can you still get the doses to people within the necessary 42-day period?

Mauldin responded that they are still monitoring that but “we believe that we can,” affirming they are working with their partners to make sure to get vaccines out as quickly as possible.

Do you have an estimate on how many providers were impacted this week and how many will be affected next week by the weather?

Mauldin stated it “is safe to say a majority of our providers have been affected by the weather” and she could discuss what exactly those numbers are with the press office. She added that they are working with PEMA to see what those numbers may look like next week as well and will continue contact with the CDC.

When a shipment does not come in, what happens to those vaccine allotments? Do those vaccines go through DOH? If they do not, how does that process work?

Mauldin responded that she would get back with more accurate information on how the process works, but their role at DOH is to get the vaccines rolled out as quickly as possible to providers.

Should patients be aware of anything if they had a vaccine appointment coming up?

Mauldin answered that patients should be in contact with their providers to “understand if there are any delays on their end” because there have been many closings across the state.

Do you know what kind of entities will be affected and will second dose orders be filled by family doctors that have already given the first dose?

Mauldin responded that many people may be seeing delays because of the weather and “we are happy to give more specifics.” Regarding the second question, she stated that “it is hard to say with specific providers” but she will investigate how second doses are being affected by the weather and issues in the department.

Were the doses that did not get delivered not delivered to DOH or were they not delivered directly to providers?

Mauldin answered that it has been a “little bit of both,” with some hospitals receiving delayed shipments due to the weather.

For the doses that did get delivered to DOH, how will the department prioritize who receives the limited number of doses?

Mauldin responded that they will maintain the same distribution strategy they have been working on this week and will “continue to work with providers to help them understand the delays” and how this will affect distribution in the upcoming week.

Will you prioritize hot-spot counties when shipments start to trickle in?

Mauldin stated that they are continuing to work with counties and “partners on the ground” to make sure they can get the vaccines they allocated for as they understand what these delays and distribution may look like.

Is there advice DOH is giving to vaccine providers about how to move forward in situations of delay?

Mauldin responded that they are continuing to work with providers and PEMA about how these delays will affect counties, so they will continue to update providers on how delays will affect them in the upcoming weeks.

Would there be any indication that providers will get extra allocations next week to make up for the lost vaccines?

Mauldin answered that they are trying to stay on track with the allocation plan they created to make sure those who need the vaccine the most are receiving them.

Can you give any details about the consulting group DOH is bringing in to determine where vaccines should go? Do you have a cost for the consulting group?

Mauldin stated that they have brought in a consulting group to help with distribution and allocation, which they felt was necessary so the department can respond with the best solution possible. She stated she does not have a cost at this time, but she will follow up.

Do you have an update on the three-week timeline considering weather problems and the Moderna mix-up?

Mauldin stated that at this time she does not think these issues will change the timeline, but they are preparing for a change with their partners working on the ground and if the timeline does change, they will keep everyone updated and providers would be the first to know.

How does the snow that is falling this year compare to past years?

Batula responded that they “are using more salt than we have in the last few years by quite a bit.” Jumper added that from the beginning of the season to February 11, they noticed the snowfall was top 10 in certain counties that saw the most snow. He explained that they still have many weeks left where there might be more snow.

Committee News

Comprehensive coverage of the House & Senate public hearings and voting meetings

House Democratic Policy Committee

2/16/21, 1:00 p.m., G-50 Irvis Office Building, Livestream

By Sheri Melnick and Claire Ergood, Pennsylvania Legislative Services

The committee held a public hearing on COVID-19 in long-term care.

Chairman Bizzarro thanked Rep. Hohenstein for his "tireless advocacy" for residents of long-term care (LTC) facilities.

Rep. Hohenstein said recent data shows that Pennsylvania has the third-highest rate of deaths in nursing homes in the U.S. at a rate of three per 100 residents. He emphasized that LTC facilities provide care for "many vulnerable populations." While noting that LTC facilities have been prioritized for vaccines, he pointed out that the committee wants to know what can be done differently to reduce the death rates in Pennsylvania nursing homes and how to make changes in LTC facilities to prevent similar impacts in the future.

Keara Klinepeter, executive deputy secretary, Pennsylvania Department of Health (DOH), noted that as of today, LTC facilities had 65,555 resident cases of COVID-19, 12,695 employee cases, and 12,023 deaths in 1,556 facilities. She pointed out that despite the numbers being "significant," the epi curve available on the DOH website is "looking really strong." She continued that despite the fall resurgence of COVID-19, the death and case counts have fallen since December. Regarding COVID-19 vaccinations, she pointed out that under the Federal Pharmacy Partnership, CVS provided 239,391 total doses in LTC facilities, including 79,201 partial doses and 79,756 full doses. Klinepeter noted that Walgreens, through the Federal Pharmacy Partnership, administered 39,093 doses of the COVID-19 vaccine including 21,450 partial doses and 8,814 complete vaccinations across 782 facilities.

Klinepeter addressed the vaccine rollout and noted that DOH anticipates that all three clinics for skilled nursing facilities (SNFs) will be completed by March 2021 and in other LTC facilities by the middle of April 2021. She commented on vaccine hesitancy from LTC facility employees and expressed her interest in hearing testimony from SEIU hoping that they would partner with DOH in stressing the importance of the vaccine.

Klinepeter noted that early in September, the federal government provided vaccine guidance for SNFs which DOH is required to follow. She continued that DOH is anticipating updated guidance regarding visitation at LTC facilities. She said, "We are very hopeful that the federal government will issue clarifying guidance to potentially allow visitation at LTC facilities."

Klinepeter commented on the efforts of the Regional Congregate Care Assistance Teams (RCAT) that continued efforts by the Regional Response Health Collaborative (RRHC) program that ended at the end of December 2020. She stressed that RCAT continues some services previously provided by the RRHC such as infection prevention, education, and providing staffing and personal protective equipment (PPE).

Rep. Hohenstein asked about the DOH assessment of the problems faced by LTC facilities and the degree to which they are symptomatic of pre-COVID-19 problems such as staffing levels. He stressed the importance of having more staff per resident and asked when the anticipated new regulations regarding staffing levels will be implemented. Klinepeter said the people who work in LTC facilities are "absolute heroes" in their continued work during a global pandemic. Regarding staffing and the pandemic, she asserted that staff have shown different ways to minimize the isolation of residents and have gone above and beyond with care. She continued that the Long-Term Care Task Force (LTCTF) focused on providing staffing assistance to facilities falling below the 2.7 per patient day (PPD) requirement that addresses the number of staff hours spent per day with each resident. She noted that DOH has worked with facilities to provide more than the minimum hours during outbreaks. Klinepeter pointed out the difficulty in finding qualified workers at LTC facilities. She remarked that DOH Acting Secretary Alison Beam continues to focus on continuing education for the frontline workers. Andy Pickett, director, Bureau of Public Health Preparedness, DOH said DOH recognized there are key areas where facilities need support especially during an outbreak. He commented on the LTCTF which includes representatives from DOH, the Department of Human Services (DHS), the Pennsylvania National Guard, and the Pennsylvania Emergency Management Agency (PEMA).

Rep. Hohenstein asked when the regulations regarding changes in staffing levels will be implemented. Klinepeter said she will need to follow up with a timeline of the regulations' implementation.

Rep. Isaacson asked whether DOH must wait for guidance from the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) regarding visitation at LTC facilities and if DOH is mandated to follow that guidance. She emphasized the impact of social isolation on residents at LTC facilities. Klinepeter said the guidance originated from the Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services (CMS) as the federal agency providing licensure to SNFs, and DOH is responsible for licensure, inspection, and surveys to ensure compliance with the regulations. She stressed that CMS guidance is "binding," and DOH, as the survey agency, is required to uphold the regulations. She noted that DOH counsel determined that DOH needs to adhere to CMS guidance and needs to enforce the requirements of CMS guidance.

Rep. Isaacson asked if DOH would incur penalties relating to funding if violations occurred at DOH-supervised facilities. Klinepeter said if DOH permitted visitation against CMS's guidance, DOH would then need to cite facilities for violating CMS guidance.

Rep. Isaacson asked if DOH is engaging in conversations about getting LTC facilities open for visitation. Klinepeter said she has monthly calls with CMS, has raised the topic over the last two months, and is advocating for visitation.

Rep. Longietti asked about the current CMS guidance regarding family caregivers' visitations in nursing homes. Klinepeter said CMS designated a caregiver based upon the facility and patient's determination that they need a caregiver for their support. She continued that the caregiver should be someone who provided routine care prior to the pandemic. Pickett said he was not particularly involved with the policy but can get the information as soon as possible. Klinepeter referenced a CMS memo addressing nursing home guidance and said she could call Rep. Longietti to provide additional information. Rep. Longietti noted that he has heard from constituents who provided care prior to the pandemic and want to visit residents.

Rep. Daley commented on the CMS and CDC guidelines and asked if the adherence to them relates to a disaster declaration or if they were standard operating procedures. Klinepeter said the adherence is related to the standard operating procedures.

Matthew Yarnell, president, Service Employees International Union (SEIU) Healthcare Pennsylvania, noted that his organization represents over 45,000 health care workers in Pennsylvania. He emphasized that the nursing home crisis is "more urgent and deadly than it has ever been" and pointed out the "chronic understaffing." He remarked on the over 11,000 deaths of Pennsylvania LTC facility residents from COVID-19 and the over 63,000 caregivers who have contracted COVID-19. Yarnell noted that the nursing home regulations have not been updated in 30 years, stressing that PPD care is "inadequate" and has not changed since the 1990s. He asserted that low staffing levels were a "key factor in resident COVID-19 deaths" of nursing home residents and called for immediate changes to the regulations to 4.1 hours PPD. He emphasized that advocates agree that 4.1 is the minimum necessary PPD. He pointed out that the workforce in LTC facilities is "an important piece of our economy." Yarnell said, "We believe that part of what we need to do is to call on DOH, the Wolf administration, and elected officials to invest in good jobs," he said in reference to workers at LTC facilities.

Yarnell commented on the need to protect workers at LTC facilities by ensuring an adequate supply of PPE, transparency in the change of ownership at LTC facilities, and updates to regulations. He pointed out that New Jersey made mandatory changes to staffing ratios to assist caregivers and provided updated infection control measures while ensuring that 90 percent of revenue is spent on patient care.

Artinese Malachi, licensed practical nurse (LPN), SEIU Healthcare Pennsylvania, noted that she has been an LPN for at least 30 years. She said, "Nursing homes are ground zero for COVID-19." She stressed that LTC facility workers care for vulnerable people and emphasized the need to connect with nursing home residents who could not see their families or leave their rooms. She commented on the broken nature of the system which was aggravated by COVID-19, resulting in additional deaths, staffing shortages, and a lack of PPE. She pointed out that 50 of the residents where she worked died when the facility closed, and they were transferred to other facilities. Malachi asserted that facilities where residents were transferred did not have adequate staffing, and residents were at greater risk for contracting COVID in crowded rooms. She urged legislators to increase staffing levels to 4.1 hours PPD "right now."

Kristin Ahrens, deputy secretary, Office of Developmental Programs (ODP), Pennsylvania Department of Human Services (DHS), explained that her office works with people with intellectual disabilities and autism. She stated that of the 56,000 people enrolled in their facilities, they had 4,00 confirmed cases of COVID-19 and 242 deaths. She noted that ODP had 5,900 confirmed cases among staff. She explained that in their residential system they have 14,000 residents and 2,231 confirmed cases. Ahrens said that in the 165 intermediate care facilities with 1,850 residents they had 500 confirmed cases. She noted that in the four state centers have 640 residents, 312 confirmed cases, and 12 deaths and that 700 of the staff have tested positive for COVID.

Ahrens went on to explain the steps they have taken including translating guidance from DOH and CDC. She noted that guidance called for larger facilities. She explained that they are also translating difficult instructions to their community, using visuals and other concepts to help their community conceptualize the important procedures in place including social distancing and the importance of vaccinations.

Ahrens then went on to explain the facilities where the office works with the Department of Aging. She stated that the guidance the facilities use is parallel to what they use in schools regarding community spreads.

Ahrens stated that as a result of their rapid response they have been able to keep the outbreaks down to just one or two individuals. She noted that they have a 19 percent staff vacancy rate, and a single outbreak can suddenly result in 25 staff out sick. She acknowledged that they have been very concerned about the staffing crisis and have been working to relocate. She explained that they have been reminding their county partners and providers of all the flexibilities they have in technical assistance.

Ahrens states that in terms of vaccinations, there were several facilities that were not included in the Federal Pharmacy Partnerships and that smaller facilities were excluded. She stated that DHS and DOH have stood up a partnership with Rite Aid where they are trying to push vaccination into DHS facilities with more than 50 residents. She explained the possibility of setting up specialty clinics where they can organize a central location and Rite Aid vaccinates the residents. She explained that they have indicated 300 facilities with DHS where they have indicated they need a vaccine location on site.

Anne Henry, senior vice president and chief government affairs officer, LeadingAge Pennsylvania, explained that LeadingAge Pennsylvania represents more than 360 not-for-profit providers of senior housing, health care, and community services across Pennsylvania. She stated that their members include around 200 nursing facilities, nearly 200 personal care homes or assisted living residences with more than 80 affordable housing developments, and more than 175 continuing care retirement communities.

Henry explained that Pennsylvania is 9th in population over 65. She explained the hardships with rapidly changing guidance. She explained that in terms of testing, the summer of 2020 federally mandated surveillance for residency and staff relied on the rates of the county. She explained that when there were high rates, residents had to be swabbed twice a week. She explained that this was difficult on the residents.

Henry explained that one of the biggest issues is that providers have done everything they could for there to be payments for tests, but now health insurance companies are denying claims for mandated testing. She reported that their testing for staff was $75,000 a month. She explained that this is not sustainable for some facilities and that a lot of facilities are self-insured.

Henry explained the issues that long-term care providers continue to struggle financially. She noted that even before the pandemic, facilities were reducing capacity or closing and dealing with systematic underfunding of medical assistance. She explained increasing costs of PPE, an increase of liability insurance, and rising costs. She noted that the vaccine does not add to the financial fragility and added that through the Federal Pharmacy Partnership they have complete the first clinics.

Henry explained the confusion with seniors' vaccine appointments and being told not to leave. She noted that the average age living in continuing care is 85 years old and most no longer drive nor access to computers. She noted that she is perplexed why seniors and providers have continually been turned away. She explained the importance of delivering vaccines to facilities, the number of vaccine providers, providing more qualified individuals to administer, and working together so seniors are not forgotten.

Rep. Hohenstein acknowledged the financial state of long-term care. He explained his concern in the sale of facilities to those who do not share the same admission of service. He asked what the impact of Medicaid changes and other policy changes would make. He explained his concern that if too many facilities close, that people will have nowhere to go. Henry responded that they have not seen rate increases in seven years. She explained that managed care has not helped the situation and that rates are now negotiated and there is very little transparency in how they use that money. She explained that some facilities shrink, resulting in the serving fewer Medicaid residents. Yarnell added the importance of reform and being transparent and honest. He noted the importance in a change of ownership.

Chairman Bizzarro thanked everyone for coming together to do the best for seniors. He acknowledged the sale of St. Mary's facility in his county.

Rep. Longietti asked about vaccines are administered to people new to facilities. He asked if the clinics are set up for new people and if they can administer vaccines as people are brought in. Henry explained that every facility has a long-term care pharmacist that specialized in senior issues. She noted that they need to work with pharmacies to vaccinate new staff and new residents, she explained that we need to allow the pharmacists to vaccinate the residents.

Chairman Bizzarro explained that they have a lot of work to do and that they are focusing on collaborating as much as possible. He stated that they need accountability but solutions.

House Appropriations Committee budget hearing with IFO (BH)

2/16/21, 2:00 p.m., House Floor, Main Capitol

By Derek Danneker, Pennsylvania Legislative Services

The committee held a budget hearing with the Independent Fiscal Office, represented by:

- Matthew Knittle, director, IFO;
- Brenda Warburton, deputy director, IFO

Rep. James inquired about the revenue estimates for the upcoming year. He noted that Gov. Tom Wolf has instituted restrictions and closures on businesses "many times" in the past 12 months. He asked how the governor's actions impact the ability of small business to operate with profit. Knittle estimated that this year the state is $950 million over budget than the administration estimate, and $300 million higher than the administration for the next fiscal year. Regarding small businesses, Knittle commented that "we're finding there have been a number of closures," however it has not been as high as previously thought six to seven months ago. Knittle attributed the limited closure rate to the Paycheck Protection Program (PPP). "That's really providing a shot in the arm for a lot of small businesses," he said.

Rep. James explained that Gov. Wolf has proposed tax increases which he believes will impact small businesses and their employees. He added that the governor is also advocating an increase in the minimum wage and asked Knittle how that proposal and others would impact the underlying economy in the IFO baseline forecast. Knittle responded that the IFO is conducting analyses, but believes the higher personal income tax with a higher forgiveness threshold would generate about $3.9 billion. For the minimum wage, Knittle explained that the policy would eliminate 27,000 job opportunities, but generate $15 million in additional revenues for the general fund and a pay increase for approximately 1 million workers.

Rep. James asked Knittle to comment on how a higher personal income tax and minimum wage would impact consumption. Knittle explained that the minimum wage would increase overall economic growth and income for individuals. He expounded that PPP has not been factored into the overall consumption, however in early April IFO plans to do a comprehensive analysis of the revenue proposals in the executive budget.

Rep. James commented, "I can't say that I've ever seen any economic analysis that included higher taxes making more economic growth." He asked how Knittle would characterize the financial state of Pennsylvania. Knittle stated that it is difficult to determine due to the uncertainty with the revenues received from the federal government and the economic situation. "I don't think we have a truly good snapshot of exactly the implications from the pandemic," he said. "Long term, we do think there is a structural deficit, we estimated that at about $2.5 billion in our five-year outlook."

Rep. Sanchez asked Knittle to elaborate on the related costs and impacts a fee or ban on the use of plastic bags would carry, and referenced a study the IFO completed in relation to the previous' years budget proposal. Knittle explained that the report evaluated several policy options, which included a ban and a 10-cent fee on bags. The study found that a 10-cent fee on bags was the superior policy, he stated, and would effectively eliminate 1.83 billion plastic bags, reduce costs by $82 million and increase employment by 260 jobs or $10 million in labor earnings. "The reason we came to that result is because a lot of the spending on plastic bags actually flows out of the state and by implementing a fee and spending less on plastic bags, those monies are retained in the state and they're redirector to other purposes," he said.

Rep. Sanchez asked if the conclusion of the report was to pursue a policy that would implement a fee on single-use plastic bags. Knittle stated that the report did not make a recommendation, only determined a superior option. "I would also say that this is a rare instance where a fee or tax was imposed and it had an economically beneficial impact where we where we would see that it would actually increase jobs," he said.

Rep. Rothman referenced the hearing packet the IFO has made available on their website where it was determined that the number working-aged people in Pennsylvania had decreased while those older than 64 years old have increased their representation in the workforce by 280,000 workers, at the same time those younger than 19 years old have also reduced their number in the workforce. "We expect a decline of 341,000 in our population zero to 64 while 65 and older is going to grow by 307,000," he said. He asked if there are any policy recommendations to secure Pennsylvania's future budgeting when the number of people who provide tax dollars will eventually exceed those who are receiving tax dollars. Knittle stated that the demographic analysis is worrying, and is partially attributable to a lower birth rate and a small "net-out" migration from Pennsylvania. He added that many students come into the state to attend college and universities and suggested that a policy that would work to retain those students would be a beneficial endeavor.

Rep. Hershey asked how the IFO determined that an increase in the minimum wage would decrease 27,000 job opportunities in Pennsylvania while the Department of Revenue (DOR) estimated that it would result in a decrease in 10,000 job opportunities. Knittle delineated that IFO uses slightly different Occupational Employment Statistics (OAS) to determine a percentage change in those who currently make under the proposed minimum wage, then apply standard employment elasticities. "We're just applying data from academic studies to the occupational employment statistics," he said. Knittle speculated that DOR uses different elasticities and a different data set.

Rep. Hershey asked if IFO will adjust how the number of job opportunities lost as related to the raising of the minimum wage in the future. Knittle stated that he would change the calculation based on the altered workforce created after the COVID-19 pandemic. "We have a projection of what the market looked in 2019, and then we have it in 2022 and we think there's going to be 230,000 fewer jobs in 2022 and most of these jobs will be low-income jobs," he said. "So, the minimum wage will have a much different effect going forward than it did in 2019 and we're undertaking that analysis right now."

Rep. Davis inquired how the trends of the COVID-19 pandemic on the workforce, such as in ability to find childcare or work, will impact Pennsylvania's budget challenges in the future. Knittle noted that female workers are disproportionately affected and may create strong implications in the future, however "We don't know quite yet why the left the labor force," he said. "I think that is a significant challenge for economic growth."

Rep. Davis questioned what the impacts to the workforce are when families have access to affordable childcare. Knittle cited a study that the IFO conducted several years ago that found "high multiplier effects" from access to affordable childcare because it allows other individuals to work.

Rep. Owlett reported that the Congressional Budget Office (CBO) found that an increase in the minimum wage would increase the costs of goods and services. He asked if Knittle would come to the same conclusion. Knittle said, "In general, we believe about 60 percent of the higher minimum wage would get pushed forward into prices," and 20 percent is due to lower profits.

Rep. Owlett noted that he was concerned that the proposal would adversely affect senior citizens who live on fixed incomes. He asked if there was anything in Gov. Wolf's proposal that would decrease costs for seniors living in the commonwealth. Knittle said he had not seen anything that would but has yet to conduct a comprehensive analysis of the proposal.

Rep. Bullock cited a study released by the Economic Policy Institute in June 2020 that showed when policies work to improve the lives of Black women, Black women succeed. She asked if Knittle had conducted a study akin to that, or another study that examined policies to improve lives based on gender. Knittle replied that IFO had not examined specific investment in ethnicity but did find that a rise in minimum wage was more likely to have a positive impact on women.

Rep. Bullock asked if IFO found any racial disparities in enrollment in PPP. Knittle stated that IFO had not yet "dug deep enough" into the data to determine if there have been any racial disparities.

Rep. Bullock commented that increasing racial and gender equity in state government agencies can help move families into the middle class and asked how the IFO has worked to commit themselves to increasing diversity. Knittle explained that his office employs 12 people and has not hired anyone in two years. He added that IFO lacks a human resources department and has not made any commitments.

Rep. Bullock asked if IFO has made any commitments to specifically study racial equity. Knittle said he had not, but his office is open to any suggestions from the General Assembly.

Rep. Struzzi asked if the IFO had taken into consideration the Regional Greenhouse Gas Initiative (RGGI) and if the IFO would work with the General Assembly to provide such a study. Knittle stated that the IFO only studies current law and would likely have to employ a contractor to produce a study with such a large economic impact.

Rep. Cephas encouraged the IFO leadership to study the impact that the COVID-19 pandemic has had on different races and genders. She asked how the General Assembly should strategize a full recovery from the pandemic. Knittle recommended the state divert federal aid funds to the industries that have been most impacted, like food service and accommodation, retail and wholesale trade. He noted that the public education may also be affected.

Rep. Cephas delineated that some industries may never return as strong as they were before the pandemic and asked how other states are pivoting in taking that into consideration. Knittle pointed out that the industries related to travel, food service, and wholesale trade may not return for a time. "Particularly, I think this move to online shopping will not reverse," he said.

Rep. Greiner cited legislation in the previous session that would allow for the indefinite carry forward of net operating losses to create "fiction-type losses and extending the ability to use these losses to even more years seems like we're going in the wrong direction." He asked if Knittle believes registering losses in this way is valid. Knittle responded that its valid to the extent that firms follow the law and that losses are legitimate.

Rep. Greiner noted that the secretary of revenue stated in a prior hearing that not all corporations pay income tax and asked if every corporation pays income tax in Pennsylvania and if all would be subject to a 46 percent income tax increase. Knittle confirmed.

Rep. Greiner advocated for a combined reporting method for income tax and asked if Knittle agreed that the state should decrease corporate income tax, rather than expand the tax base to larger than what the government requires. Knittle cited previous studies in confirming that if Pennsylvania were to utilize a combined reporting method, the tax base would expand 12 percent and lead to a $400 million increase in revenue. "Of course, the phasing of the lower tax rate down to about 6 percent, we have about a $1.2 billion tax reduction, but it's phased in over several years," he said.

Rep. Fiedler noted that about one quarter of the state's working public would benefit from a raise in the minimum wage and many of them would be parents or full-time workers. She asked Knittle to detail the state and human component of raising the minimum wage. Knittle cited the IFO study from 2019 that found about 1 million workers would be paid a collective $3.3 billion more and $2,300 more annually on an individual basis. He added that the minimum wage increase acts as an income transfer to lower income individuals "who spend all the money that they receive." Knittle stated that IFO is working with the Department of Human Services (DHS) to estimate cost savings or additional costs of the higher minimum wage.

Rep. Quinn asked if the IFO is fully staffed to meet the requirements that the General Assembly has asked them to meet. Knittle stated that his office is fully staffed but is putting in full-time work for the extra duties that are required.

Rep. Quinn asked if the IFO has had to prioritize legislators' requests. Knittle said IFO has not yet had to prioritize inquiries.

Rep. Kim questioned if the 27,000 job opportunities that the IFO estimates would be lost in increasing the minimum wage are full-time or part-time employment positions. Knittle explained that the job loss would not immediately take place following a minimum wage increase, but would slow the rate of replacing positions. He reported that job opportunities refer to both part-time and full-time positions. He noted that minimum wage jobs currently experience a large amount of "churn," or people leaving and others coming to those positions at a high rate. He expounded that a reduction in that churning would result in a cost savings.

Rep. Kim asked how many minimum wage workers are aged 60 or older. Knittle reported that the number of minimum wage workers who are aged 60 or older is rapidly increasing and makes up 22 percent of minimum wage workers.

Rep. Ecker questioned the profitability of legalized recreational marijuana for state revenue. He asked if IFO had conducted any studies to examine the revenue the state would generate if the General Assembly legalized recreational marijuana. Knittle said the state could see somewhere between $400 million to $1 billion in revenue if an excise tax is used.

Rep. Heffley stated that many minimum wage earners are aged 16 to 21, and are looking for their first job to learn how to operate in the workforce. He said that raising the minimum wage would preclude many first-time workers from entering the workforce. He asked if increasing the minimum wage would decrease the number of jobs available to those individuals. Knittle explained that the next analysis would include an age breakdown to determine that answer.

Rep. Heffley asked how raising the minimum wage would affect workers who currently make $12 to $15-dollars an hour. Knittle said, "In our analysis when it was raised to $12 an our we assume that everybody from $12 to $15 an hour would be indirectly affected and would also get a bump," he said.

Rep. Heffley expressed concern for counties and school districts that utilize many positions that are below the proposed minimum wage, and in turn, would need to raise property taxes. He inquired if that was an accurate assumption. Knittle reiterated that 60 percent of the higher minimum wage cost would be pushed forward into prices.

Chairman Bradford asked what kind of economic growth the state could expect in utilizing Gov. Wolf's personal income "tax shift." Knittle replied, "When income flows to lower income individuals because they will spend all of that income and we'll have more of an immediate economic impact."

Chairman Bradford asked if counties or cities have been allowed to set their own minimum wage. Knittle confirmed that there were many examples.

Chairman Bradford asked if Pennsylvania's lower minimum wage as compared to other states has caused a higher amount of minimum wage jobs in Pennsylvania relative to other states. Knittle responded that there has not net been a study on that.

Chairman Bradford estimated there to be $4 billion in deferred payments that the state annually pays about $480 million on interest each year. He said additionally, there is $730 million in fund transfers. "We talk about this DHS overspend but we know when we write these budgets that there are entitlement lines that we're going to underfund to artificially deflate our spend number," he said. "If you're not having an honest discussion in terms of how big the holes in this budget are and how big the structural deficit is, you're not beginning with an honest set of facts."

Chairman Saylor noted that it has been the Wolf administration who both advocated for deferred payments and wanted other deflated numbers. He pointed out that DHS has been mismanaged to spend beyond what was proposed. "You would think a secretary that lost all of her deputy secretaries as soon as she took over would have found a way to make sure that her departments were run more accurately and give this General Assembly an accurate account of why she constantly overspent the budget that she requests," he said.

Chairman Saylor pointed out several instances of the minimum wages increasing the costs to customers or employees who have lost benefits and hours. "There's only so much profit that can be made for any company and anybody who believes that the minimum wage being raised will not raise the cost to seniors and people in poverty as well as to the rest of us is just kidding themselves," he said.

Chairman Saylor commented that legalizing recreational marijuana would increase the rates of DUI in the state, which would also increase insurance rates. He added that many jobs use drug tests to ensure their employees are not using marijuana, and already face workforce shortages stemming from the drug's use. "We need more commonsense in government, rather than more taxes and more responsibility by our secretaries controlling how they spend dollars," he said.

House Appropriations budget hearing with Department of Aging (BH)

2/16/21, 3:00 p.m., House Floor

By Matt Hess, Pennsylvania Legislative Services

The committee held a budget hearing with the Department of Aging (Aging), represented by Secretary Robert Torres, Deputy Secretary Steve Horner, and Bureau of Pharmaceutical Assistance Director Tom Snedden.

Rep. Fritz questioned if the department was consulted when Pennsylvania expanded vaccine eligibility. Sec. Torres said Aging was not consulted and the decision was made by the Department of Health (DOH) when the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) revised the guidelines for vaccine eligibility. He added that 88 percent of the individuals who passed away due to COVID-19 were over the age of 65. "The governor wanted to make sure any individual 65 and older and those with underlying health conditions have the opportunity to seek the vaccine," he stated.

Rep. Fritz asked what grade he would give the department. Sec. Torres opined that he would give the department a high grade and said Aging has done a "tremendous amount of work" for Pennsylvania seniors during the pandemic. "We are making sure their needs are being met in terms of meals and making sure they are not suffering from social isolation," he stated.

Rep. Fritz asked what role the area agencies on aging (AAAs) are playing in scheduling vaccinations. Sec. Torres explained that there are 52 AAAs throughout Pennsylvania and their resources widely vary. He indicated that some AAAs have formed vaccine delivery task forces with local and county partnerships and highlighted the Somerset County AAA's assistance in vaccine delivery.

Rep. Fritz questioned if there are specific AAA employees who are tasked with scheduling vaccine appointments for older adults. Sec. Torres reiterated AAA capacity varies throughout Pennsylvania but affirmed that the AAAs are committed to assisting Pennsylvania's senior citizens. Sec. Torres added that Aging has a six-person team helping PACE enrollees in any way they can to get a vaccination.

Rep. Fritz explained that there are many seniors who do not have access to a computer and questioned if there are resources for "good Samaritans" who assist individuals with scheduling a vaccination appointment. Sec. Torres said DOH's website has vaccine information available and indicated that Aging is currently surveying the AAAs to deploy resources to assist older Pennsylvanians.

Rep. Bullock asked how racial disparities impact access to health care. Sec. Torres said the pandemic magnified health disparities in Pennsylvania and emphasized that the department has worked with diversity commissions and has been sensitive to the needs of communities. "We are being effective in our outreach and being responsive in the services we are providing," he stated. "We need to work with trusted partners in our community, especially when you are talking about the pandemic and vaccines. In the African-American community there has been a lot of distrust, for a lot of historic reasons...in taking a vaccine that is fairly new, and sometimes it's distrust of government. We are establishing partnerships and collaborations at the local level with organizations that we can work with to get good information into the community and address any questions and concerns they may have."

Rep. Bullock questioned what the department has done to address racial equity in Aging. Sec. Torres said 14 percent of the department's staff is diverse and employees have received unconscious bias training and received training on issues related to LGBTQ seniors.

Rep. Struzzi asked how many Pennsylvanians over the age of 65 are vaccinated. Sec. Torres said he did not have that information. Rep. Struzzi asked how the department addresses seniors who are homebound. Sec. Torres noted that the Butler County AAA held a mass vaccination event and indicated that other AAAs are discussing ways to get seniors vaccinated.

Rep. Fiedler questioned what the department's plan is for coordinating with DOH and the Department of Human Services (DHS) to ensure there is adequate staffing in long-term care (LTC) facilities. Sec. Torres said Aging speaks regularly with those departments and added that Aging's long-term care ombudsman advocates on behalf of residents of LTC facilities and their families. "Anything the long-term care ombudsman was observing in the field was being relayed back to me and we have routine opportunities to discuss our observations with DOH and DHS," he stated.

Rep. Fiedler questioned if staffing at LTC facilities is adequate. Sec. Torres said staffing at LTC facilities has been a challenge and noted that the National Guard had to assist some facilities. "There's no question there were significant challenges with staff being sick and needing to quarantine and we did our best as an administration to support LTC facilities that needed help, especially when there was an outbreak," he stated.

Rep. Schroeder questioned if mobile sites are appropriate for seniors to receive a vaccine. Sec. Torres said mobile vaccination sites are being considered and planned at the local and county level.

Rep. Schroeder asked what the department has heard regarding mental health for older adults, particularly for individuals with dementia. Sec. Torres said the lack of visitation and other restrictions have been "very challenging" for individuals with dementia and their families. He added that Aging has the Alzheimer's Disease and Related Disorders Task Force and has partnered with the Jewish Healthcare Foundation to provide outreach and training efforts.

Rep. Krueger inquired about the department's work with the Older Adult Financial Exploitation Task Force. Sec. Torres said the task force has held two meetings and will be conducting a third next week. "We are coming up with concrete recommendations we can implement to try to stem the tide of financial exploitation...I'm hoping to have recommendations at the end of April," he stated. Rep. Krueger questioned if the pandemic has caused an increase in older adult financial exploitation. Sec. Torres indicated that financial exploitation was on the rise for the last several years and there are new COVID-19 and vaccine scams as a result of the pandemic that target senior citizens.

Rep. Rosemary Brown said reports of need increased by 80 percent and questioned why the proposed line item for protective services is being decreased. Sec. Torres indicated that he would get back to the committee with that information.

Rep. Kinkead asked what the department is doing to address social isolation. Sec. Torres said Aging made social isolation a priority during the pandemic and worked with AAAs and the AARP to provide resources to seniors, including distributing tablets to some LTC living facilities. He added that Aging partnered with Slippery Rock University on a program that pairs older adults with students.

Rep. Kinkead asked what the department is doing to continue support for senior centers. Sec. Torres said 95 percent of senior centers were closed due to the pandemic and explained that Aging split over $2 million in grant funds to centers across Pennsylvania. "Senior centers are an integral part of seniors being able to participate and engage socially and receive education and wellness programs; it's a big part of what we need to support in communities, particularly when this pandemic is over," he stated.

Rep. James questioned how many AAAs are in the "red" according to the department's performance measurements. Sec. Torres said there are six AAAs in red, 10 in yellow, and 36 in green. Rep. James questioned if the AAAs have addressed staffing issues. Sec. Torres said staffing levels vary throughout the AAAs but staffing is an issue that Aging monitors.

Rep. James asked if some AAAs will be penalized financially if they disregard Aging's directives. Sec. Torres said the department receives federal funds that dictate what is expected from the AAAs. "We provide technical assistance and put together quality assurance reports to help AAAs. I don't approach issues with a stick; if there is a situation that requires that it's perhaps that the attempts at remediation are not succeeding or there are other issues. I work very collaboratively with the AAAs," he stated.

Rep. Culver questioned if there is a waiting list for the PENNCARE program. Sec. Torres said there are 3,344 individuals on the waiting list but many of those individuals are receiving some form of assistance. He explained that at the beginning of 2020 the list was over 4,000, but using federal funding from the COVID-19 relief bills, they were able to reduce it by 19 percent. Rep. Culver asked if all 52 AAAs have a waiting list or PENNCARE. Sec. Torres said 40 AAAs have a waiting list. Rep. Culver questioned why the state is not utilizing excess Lottery funds to reduce the waiting list for PENNCARE. Sec. Torres indicated that there are federal funds that can be utilized to further reduce the waiting list.

Rep. Owlett questioned if Aging was consulted prior to DOH issuing a directive in March to require nursing homes to admit individuals discharged from hospitals who tested positive for COVID-19. Sec. Torres said Aging was not consulted. "Whatever decisions were being made from a public health standpoint were made at DOH," he stated. Rep. Owlett questioned if DOH's directive led to a higher number of nursing home deaths. Sec. Torres stated "that's not a question that I'm prepared to answer at this point" but emphasized that former Health Secretary Rachel Levine was doing her best to keep people as safe as possible.

Rep. Owlett said New York had issues related to the accurate reporting of nursing home deaths and questioned if the figures are accurate in Pennsylvania. Sec. Torres said the question would be better directed to DOH. "Our department's role with LTC facilities is to advocate and support the residents and their families. I do not have licensing authority over them," he stated.

Rep. Lawrence questioned why Aging filed a request to "quash" a subpoena regarding the federal investigation into the Brighton Rehabilitation and Wellness Center. Sec. Torres said state law does not allow Aging to provide the kind of information requested through a subpoena. "It must be a court order; it's just a procedural issue. No one is trying to withhold information, we are complying with state law," he stated. Rep. Lawrence said the secretary's response is "baloney" and indicated that the Older Adults Protective Services Act provides the secretary flexibility to protect seniors. "I see you standing in the way of a federal investigation into what happened at a nursing home under the supervision of a state-appointed manager," Rep. Lawrence stated.

Rep. Lawrence asked if Sec. Torres discussed the situation at Brighton with Gov. Tom Wolf. Sec. Torres said he has not spoken to Gov. Wolf. "I follow the advice of counsel. This is a legal matter," he stated. Rep. Lawrence asked again if Sec. Torres spoke with Gov. Wolf about the Brighton situation. Sec. Torres stated, "I have discussed it with our counsel; that's who I discussed it with."

Rep. Zimmerman asked what percentage of department staff is working remotely. Sec. Torres said around 90 percent are working remotely. Rep. Zimmerman questioned what oversight is in place to ensure that agency employees are being productive. Sec. Torres said he meets with management teams every morning. "We have not suffered in terms of our productivity because of the pandemic...We're keeping up with the workload and trying to be as responsive as we can to older adults and anyone else who needs our support," he stated.

Rep. Sanchez asked if the department has seen an increase in food insecurity for seniors. Sec. Torres affirmed Aging placed an emphasis on addressing food insecurity since the beginning of the pandemic and has worked with the Department of Agriculture, AAAs, and other stakeholders to ensure that older adults have food.

Rep. Topper questioned how many investigations were impacted by Aging's decision to suspend face-to-face interactions. Sec. Torres said he did not have an exact figure but noted that decision was at the height of the pandemic and face-to-face investigations are now being conducted when appropriate.

Rep. Samuelson, minority chairman of the House Aging and Older Adult Services Committee, questioned how Coronavirus Aid, Relief, and Economic Security (CARES) Act funding was allocated by the department. Sec. Torres said Aging received $37 million and it was used for supported services, nutrition services, and caregiver services.

Rep. Day, chairman of the House Aging and Older Adult Services Committee, asked what impact the proposed minimum wage increase would have on private long-term living facility residents and their families. Sec. Torres said the increase in the minimum wage would likely lead to some increased cost but emphasized that the higher wage would cause increased staffing stability.

Rep. Day questioned what the plan is to get older Pennsylvanians vaccinated. Sec. Torres said AAAs are working at the local level to provide vaccines to senior citizens and highlighted the Somerset County AAA. "They have a good model...By working with their local health system they are getting about 300 allocations a week and that allows them to line up older adults to get their vaccines. Last week they had a waiting list of 900 but if the system has a cancellation they can move someone up the list. That type of local model is a model we have to replicate," he stated.
